Please excuse the rushed nature of these comments.

1) I have no objections to the development. The tennis court surface will be largely unseen from adjacent roads and the landscaped entrance to the car park will appear as an extension of the garden area.

2) I note that no fencing is to be erected around the tennis court. This makes it much more acceptable visually but I wonder how practical this will prove to be. Any subsequent application for fencing will need to include substantial amounts of screening planting, in this elevated position away from the existing group of buildings.
