11 Jun 2024	Executive		Submission of data to the Local Government Boundary Commission for England	Yes	Following LGR, the Local Government Boundary Commission for England will be undertaking a Boundary Review. This review will identify the number of councillors to be elected and the geographies of the Divisions they represent for the next local government elections in 2027. The first stage of this is for the Council to submit a proposed number of Councillors and a prediction of the number of electors in each polling district in 2030. Executive will be asked to approve the submission of this information, and other	The recommendations have been developed by a Member Working Group, supported by relevant officers. The Boundary Review will be subject to two Public Consultations.	The public consultations will be run by the Boundary Commission, to gather views on draft and then final proposed division patterns (i.e. the areas each council member will represent following the next election)	Rachel Joyce, Assistant Chief Executive for Localities 01423 556187	Submission of data to the Local Government Boundary Commission for England
